

Clinical Research Associate

ALLG currently has an opening for two new CRA's

A unique opportunity to be involved in the ALLG's centre for investigator-initiated clinical trials.

Full time
Immediate start
Richmond, Victoria

The ALLG is the leading national cooperative group that specialises in establishing investigator-initiated clinical trials for patients with a haematological (blood) cancer. The successful candidate will be responsible for activation and central coordination of allocated ALLG multisite trials. This will involve developing and maintaining resources and documentation to support clinical trials, effective communication and collaboration with ALLG investigators, data management and assistance with the development of the ALLG's Trial Centre. The position will be part of a team dedicated to research excellence in a progressive clinical trial setting.

KEY SKILLS AND CRITERIA

- Tertiary qualification in a health or science field
- Experience in clinical trials and data management. Experience in eCRF design would be highly regarded.
- Demonstrated understanding of GCP, regulatory, ethical and privacy guidelines
- Understanding of medical terminology, ideally oncology or haematology
- Demonstrated project management and organisational skills, including ability to work autonomously across multiple projects with tight timelines
- Demonstrated experience with MS Word, Outlook, Excel, PowerPoint and Access
- High attention to detail
- Ability to review processes and suggest improvements to enhance existing methods
- Excellent oral and written communication skills
- Personal confidence to liaise with a variety of health and research professionals
- Data analysis skills would be highly regarded

The ALLG as a not-for-profit organisation offers salary packaging entitlements.

For further information or to request the position description, contact Megan Sanders, ALLG Program Manager on ph (03) 8373 9707 or megan.sanders@allg.org.au.

To apply send your CV and a cover letter addressing the key skills and criteria to megan.sanders@allg.org.au by 9am Wednesday 23 May 2018.